

Madison College Freshmen Have Much In Common

You're excited, confused and maybe just a little homesick. And you're clad in loafers and a Villager blouse or shirtwaister.

You're one of the thousands of freshmen entering colleges all over the country.

But as one of Madison's 506 new students you have even more in common with your classmates.

You're probably a graduate of a Virginia high school. Eighty-six per cent of your class is. (The other 62 students or 14% are from Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Washington, D. C., West Virginia, New York, Florida, South Carolina, Massachusetts, Texas, France, Uruguay and Bermuda.)

And it's probable that you are from a Virginia county since 54% of that 86% are from Virginia counties. The other 32% are from Virginia cities.

And about now you're probably wondering how five of you will ever live in one suite. Ninety-two per cent of the entering freshmen are living in the college dormitories—most of them five to a suite in suites made for four.

More than likely you were a good high school student who was active in extracurricular activities. Two hundred and sixty-eight of you were in the upper fourth of your class. That's about 60%. Thirty-four per cent or 151 were in the second quartile of their graduating class and 19 or about 4% were in the third quartile.

You may well have been near the top of your class, for there are 13 valedictorians, 10 class salutatorians and 113 who were in the upper tenth of their class among the 506.

Your school honors or activities probably included Student Government, honor societies, the yearbook or newspaper staff and varsity athletics. Thirty-four of you were either a SCA president or vice-president. One hundred and thirty were members of either Beta Club or the National Honor Society. Varsity athletics, including majorettes and cheerleaders, were an activity of 210.

Almost half of you were a member of the staff of your yearbook and newspaper or magazine. One hundred and nineteen were on the newspaper or magazine staff; 114 were on the yearbook one.

More than likely you and your roommate made similar College Board Entrance Examination scores. Test results show that about three-fifths of you made between 400-599 on the verbal section and the mathematics section of the test.

About one-fifth made between 300 and 399 on both sections. Twenty-three made between 600 and 699 on the verbal; twenty-five fell in this category in mathematics. Only one scored 700 to 799 on the verbal and mathematics.

Your career plans may include teaching. For 290 freshmen indicated an interest in educational fields. Eighty-one chose elementary education, 165 chose secondary and 44 chose business education and administration. An even further indication is that 114 said they had belonged to the Future Teachers of America club while in high school.

But your field of academic interest could be entirely different. Thirty-two said they were interested in home economics, 17 in music, 41 in liberal arts, 19 in

Classes To Use Television

John C. Wells, head of the Physics Department, and one of his students, experiment with the new closed-circuit television.

Madison's Use Of Television Is Virginia First

The closed-circuit television will be used as a teaching device for the first time in Virginia College when Madison College classes begin.

Freshmen courses in physical science at Madison College will be taught with the closed circuit television system.

In a demonstration to the college faculty this past summer, Dr. John C. Wells, head of the physics department, explained how the equipment will be used for mass lectures to some 150 incoming freshmen.

A team teaching method of instruction will be used in the General Physical Science courses. The freshmen, assembled in four classrooms, will hear television lectures from instructors who are proficient in specialized areas of science. Heretofore, each instructor has taught separate freshmen courses in Physical Science.

Each student will attend two hours of television lecture, meet in discussion groups for one hour, and have a two-hour laboratory each week.

In the freshman biology courses, television will be used for demonstrations of microscopic materials, charts and other visual aids in mass lectures to students.

The television equipment will be used also in advanced courses in Physics in order to enlarge demonstrations that are difficult to see under ordinary classroom conditions.

The closed-circuit equipment consists of two DuMont vidicon cameras and 27 inch viewing sets located in four classrooms of Burruss Hall. The cameras are equipped with close-up and zoom lenses. The sound system is two-way so that students may ask questions of the instructor at any time.

Dr. Paul McCorkle, Dr. John Wells and Mr. Kent Moore are to instruct cooperatively the Physical Science Courses. Miss Barbara Landis and Miss Sandra Statton are the two student assistants who will be in charge of the cameras and visual aids.

The following courses will be offered using the television system: P.S. 10B, P.S. 10C, P.S. 10D, P.S. 10E, P.S. 10F, P.S. 10G, and P.S. 10H.

Merchants Have "Freshman Day"

The Greater Harrisonburg Association, comprised of the retail merchants of Harrisonburg, are sponsoring a "Freshmen Day" Saturday, September 22 from 1:00-5:00 p.m. In order to make familiar their stores to the Freshmen and new students, the merchants plan to present gifts to any student wearing an identifying badge. Invitations and badges will be sent to the students through their post office boxes.

Bridgewater College, Eastern Mennonite College and Madison College are invited to take part in the program.

18 New Members Join Madison College Faculty

Eighteen new members have joined the Madison College faculty.

The appointments include those replacing professors who have resigned or retired, those replacing professors who have leaves of absences to do graduate work and three who are taking new positions.

Miss Martha Randolph Foy, instructor of foreign languages, Mrs. Pauline G. Jones, assistant professor of education and part-time supervisor of student teachers for elementary grades, and Dr. David Allen Lacy III, assistant professor of philosophy, will have new positions.

Miss Foy, a graduate of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, magna cum laude, received her masters degree from Yale University in 1962. She has attended the University of Aix-Marseille, France. A member of Phi Beta Kappa, she has held Fulbright and Woodrow Wilson fellowships for study in France.

Mrs. Jones, a graduate of Berea College, Ky., and the University of Kentucky, is a former member of the education department at Atlantic Christian College, N. C.

Dr. Lacy, a native of Dallas, Tex., attended Texas Christian College, Vanderbilt and Duke Universities. He completed the work for the Ph.D. degree in religion and philosophy at Duke University.

Five newcomers are replacements for professors who have obtained leaves of absences to do graduate study. They are Miss Hazel Griffin, assistant professor of library science; Mr. Joseph A. Levey, assistant professor of music; Dr. Paul McCorkle, professor of physics; Dr. Muriel Mae Kelly, associate professor of education; and Miss Emily V. Bushong, assistant professor of education and supervisor of student teaching in the sixth grade at Anthony-Seeger.

Miss Griffin, a native of Gates, Tenn., will be replacing Miss Mildred Jones for a year. She holds the B. S. degree from Memphis State University and the B. S. in library science and M.A. in library science from George Peabody College.

Levey, who will be replacing Mr. Frank M. Sidorsky for a year, is a former choral director at Norwalk, Ohio, High School. He holds the B.M. degree from West Virginia University and the M. M. degree from Northwestern University.

Dr. McCorkle, a graduate of Ohio State and Cornell Universities, replaces John Gordon. Former head of the physics department at Bradley University, Peoria, Ill., he taught at Roanoke College and William and Mary College. He is a member of Phi Kappa Phi, Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi.

Dr. Kelly, graduate of Radford College, received the M. A. degree from Columbia University and the Ed.D. from George Peabody College. Since 1957, she has served as supervisor of elementary education for the Giles County School Board. She is replacing John C. Copp.

Miss Bushong, a former elementary teacher at Edinburg Va. High School, replaces Charles W. Blair. She is a graduate of Madison College and the University of Virginia.

Dr. Marie M. Jenkins will be replacing Dr. Edwin DeWitt Miller who retired from the biology department. Dr. Jenkins, who has taught at the University of Oklahoma, received her B. S. degree in biology from Phillips University, Oklahoma, her M.A. degree from Catholic University, Washington, D. C., and her Ph.D. degree from the University of Oklahoma.

Nine will be replacing professors who resigned. Miss Beverly Anne Pleasants will replace Mr. Duvall Jones who has gone to Ferrum Junior College as instructor of biology. A 1957 graduate of Madison, she holds the M.S. degree in zoology from Louisiana State University and has done graduate study in genetics at the University of Texas.

Less Freshmen Enter Madison Than Last Year

Madison College's enrollment is slightly higher this session than last, but the number of new boarding students is almost 100 less.

The full-time enrollment is 1511. This does not include some special students, part-time students and those who will take night courses. 1308 of these are boarding students as compared with 1292 boarding students last year at this time. However, there are only 441 new boarding students this session as compared to 537 new boarding students in 1961.

"The number of new boarding students had to be reduced," said President Miller, "because more than 100 more old students are returning this year than returned last year." 853 upperclassmen returned last year but 1005 were to return this year.

The total number of new students is 506. 404 are boarding freshmen, 37 are boarding transfers or re-entries, 33 are day freshmen and 32 are day transfers.

Governor Appoints Miller To Advisory Hospital Council

Dr. G. Tyler Miller, president of Madison College, has been appointed by Governor A. S. Harrison, Jr. to a six year membership on the Advisory Hospital Council. Dr. Miller, who is on the Board of Trustees of Rockingham Memorial Hospital, began his service on the Council in July.

Let's Get Together

The administration of Madison College has attempted to respect the law of self-government, which is the basis of the Constitution of Student Government, as evidenced by the Student-Faculty Relations Committee, the Faculty Judiciary Committee and other such committees. This recognition on the part of the administration of the students' ability to govern themselves has always been honored and respected by both students and faculty alike. However, over the past summer, this relationship appears to have been violated.

During the second semester of the 1961-62 session, the Student Government Organization made an attempt to comply with the students' request for a more liberal interpretation of the dress regulations. At that time, the sports attire rule stated that students were allowed to wear sports attire on Saturday until 5:00 p.m., but at no other time without the wearing of such being a violation of the "dress rule". The majority of students felt, as shown by dormitory discussions and votes, that more students would get up in the morning and/or go to breakfast if they could be more casually attired. Consequently, the Student Government Organization recommended to the administration a change in the "sports attire rule" so that it would make possible the wearing of sports attire in the mornings, until 9:00 a.m., as well as on Saturdays.

The recommendation from Student Government was turned down on the grounds that sports attire did not really maintain "the high standards of personal dress which characterizes the women students of Madison College", so that the less seen of sports attire, the better it would be. The students were given the choice of being able to wear sports attire on Saturdays until 5:00 p.m., (in other words keep the rule already in operation) or to wear sports attire in accordance with their new request ... just during the week until 9:00 a.m.

Since sports clothes have become more popular, more fashionable, and more frequently worn, consequently making them a regular necessity in the modern wardrobe, the students could not understand the attitude towards sports attire. Then too, if the attitude of the administration towards sports attire was to prevail, it seemed as if the administration would not mind the students wearing the controversial attire at a time in the morning when very few people would see it.

The Student Government Organization was asked to give their opinion on the rule, then report back to the administration. Because Student Government represents the student body, and because the "attire rule" had become a debatable issue, Student Government polled the opinions of the student body to find out whether they would prefer the Saturday wear or the morning wear of sports clothes. Since most students felt that Saturday was a day of activity, thus making sports clothes more suitable, and since most students were not anxious to give up a right they had already been granted, the students voted on, and decided to keep, the rule which had been in existence.... that of being able to wear sports attire until 5:00 p.m. on Saturdays.

If one looks over the new handbook, one will find that the rule has been changed. It had not the consent of the student body; rather the new rule had the dissent of the students. It, then, appears to be a violation of the very basis of the Student Government Constitution... self government. In one sense it is. The students' opinions, when voiced, were disregarded. This was not totally because of a lack of consideration on the part of the administration, but because of a lack of communication between the Student Government Organization and the administration. The administration was not notified officially that the students had decided to keep the rule as it was.

It is not the rule which is so important; rather it is the principle. We suggest that the communication barrier be overcome and that the self-government principle be respected.

Staff States Policy

Even though there may be no hard and fast ruling on newspaper policy, each newspaper staff uses some manner of criteria and ethics as a guide to good journalism. In the case of the Breeze: It shall be the purpose of this paper to print the pros and cons of any controversial issue with the understanding that the staff, through editorials, may expound on certain phases of the issue. The paper reserves the right to edit any material of libelous nature or any material that might be termed libelous. Any attacks on an individual rather than a policy will be censored to the satisfaction of the editorial board.

The paper welcomes any comments from the faculty and students regarding pertinent issues on campus and in the Breeze. Comments should be sent as letters to the editor and should be typed, double spaced, and signed by the formulator. No unsigned letters will be printed; other comments will appear in the paper.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Letters To Freshmen

Standards Greet Freshman Class

Ahoy, Class of '66,
Welcome to the great walls of Madison College. In a short while, I am sure all of you will hear of "Standards" and its committee. We are a part of the Student Government Association, our purpose being to promote high standards of conduct and appearance among the students of this college. I hope that you will soon, if not already, feel a part of our campus and contribute to the wholesome attitude and spirit that prevails on our grounds.

Standards' members are ready and willing to answer any questions you may have concerning the rules. We urge you to submit your ideas and suggestions for improvements. Standards serves—YOU—as a "Counselor" and a "Reminder."

Carole Boettcher
Standards Chairman

We Need You, Says President Of Stu Gu

I received a letter this summer that was concluded in an unusual manner. The words, borrowed from Van Gogh, were, "With a handshake in thought." May I begin this with such a gesture. On behalf of Student Government, I welcome you.

Most of you are familiar with a Student Government Association from your high school days. Perhaps some of you have worked with an SGA. Your association with such an organization is to be continued here on the Madison campus. Every student is a member of the Student Government Association. The small governing body, the Student Council, is composed of nine senior officers, three senior class representatives, three junior class representatives, three sophomore class representatives, and soon will have three freshman class representatives. Today and throughout the coming week and year, you will observe these people not as statistics but as individuals working for the college—which means the student at the desk and the professor behind the lectern.

You are the new life on this campus—we need you. I needed your letters this summer. They were a reward that I had forgotten would be mine. I shared some of them with the council while we were at Retreat. One freshman wrote, "I have looked forward to college for a very long time." To her and to all of you, I wish the best of luck; and, if it helps any, just remember that all these confident looking upperclassmen were freshmen one, two, or three years ago! You'll survive, too!

The Free Lance

Columnist States His Own Policy

By David R. Blevins

Welcome back to you Madison veterans and to those lost soul-like freshmen. A special welcome back to the long suffering male student populace and to the new gentlemen who will be joining our meager number.

D. Blevins

The author had an endurable summer; quite a change from female-full Madison to the G.I. infested European environs.

Don't you believe it! — the rain does not fall on the plains in Spain and Paris doesn't always sizzle in the summer. Now that those two myths have been exploded, I'll turn to the boring task of stating a policy.

Men students have been writing regularly scheduled columns (as far as our files show) since 1954 when Skip Michael first by-lined an issue of The Breeze. Since that time, Larry Bohnert, Ralph Crabb, Bob Linton, and I have continued with regular columns by a Madison man. Two misconceptions have arisen concerning the column which should be cleared-up. First, the column is not the voice of the men student population (neither a minority or majority opinion). Second, the column need not be confined to reporting activities of the men student organizations. Those of you who remember the fine writing of Bob Linton will remember also that he departed from this activity-reporting and followed a more editorial line. This precedent (which probably accounted for his being awarded the Logan Literary Prize) will be continued this term as it was last year.

The contents of this column therefore, are the sole responsibility of the author and do not necessarily reflect the policies of The Breeze, Men's Stu Gu, Men's Fraternity, the Administration, Baptist Student Union, DAR, WCTU, or the men students in general.

The Free Lance will contain editorial comment on various phenomenon observed on the campus scene including controversial issues which do have a way of cropping-up from time to time. The next (Continued on Page 5)

Five Administrators Guide College

The Dean of the College, Percy H. Warren, is the second ranking administrative officer of the College. He serves as acting executive officer of the College in the absence of the President or at such times as the President may designate. Working closely with the Dean and responsible to him are the Registrar, the divisional directors, the department heads, the Head Librarian, and members of the faculty.

The Dean of the College is directly responsible for the development and improvement of the instructional program, and all persons serving in this area are responsible to him and to their respective department heads and divisional directors.

Dean Warren is responsible for the instructional program of the College; matters having to do with instruction, curricula, courses of study, and other academic policies shall be cleared with and through the Dean before being brought to the attention of the President.

The responsibility for assisting with the general administration of the College is assigned to Dean Warren. He recommends policies and keeps the President advised of general college problems; participates in the selection and promotion of faculty members; acts on faculty requests for absences; prepares the three college catalogs with the assistance of the department heads and administrative officers; introduces the regular assembly programs in the absence of the President; and assists in any other way that the President may request. He receives reports and has final authority to act on the screening program of students.

Dean Warren, also, is the executive officer in all matters of academic status. All questions concerning the evaluation of credits which involve policy shall be referred to the Dean for decision. He also makes decisions concerning all requests of students for exceptional programs and for exceptions to degree requirements; such as substitution of one course for another. In this connection he holds a conference with each freshman student during the first semester of his or her enrollment and also has conferences with several hundred upperclassmen each year.

Communicating with students who are not eligible to return to school unless they raise their scholastic average by summer school attendance is another responsibility of the Dean of the College. He advises the parents of the students in this connection.

As part of his duties, Dean Warren serves as Director of the Summer Session. He receives and acts on all summer school applications, both graduate and undergraduate, graduate, applications, records, and correspondence, which are kept in the Dean's Office.

Dean Warren is responsible for assisting with public relations and the general morale and understanding within and without the College.

Preparing, proof reading and editing the three college catalogs are also part of the Dean of the College's duties. He mails out, also, the summer session and graduate bulletins. Dean Warren is in charge of preparing and distributing bi-monthly the faculty news letter during the regular session and preparing and distributing weekly the announcement sheet for the summer session, and he maintains a library of college catalogs from other institutions of higher learning, both graduate and undergraduate.

Also, as part of his responsibilities, Dean Warren serves as Chairman and Executive Officer of the Graduate Council, Committee on Curriculum and Instruction, Admissions Committee and Honors Committee; and as a member of the Administrative Council, Faculty Council and Judiciary Committee. He serves as liaison officer for the Danforth Foundation and the campus representative for the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Foundation.

Dean Warren earned his B. S. Degree from the college of William and Mary, his graduate fellow in biology from the University of Virginia, and his Master's and Doctor's Degree from Columbia University.

The administrative positions and responsibilities, particularly those of the Deans, seem to be confusing to new students.

There are two divisions in the responsibilities of the Deans of Madison in which they deal directly with the students. They are the Student Personnel Services and the services dealing with academic matters.

Dean Tolbert

Dean E. L. Tolbert serves in the capacity of Dean of Students. Dean Tolbert, as well as the other members of the Student Personnel Division, is interested in helping the students become adjusted to college life, helping them in the selection of programs that are most suitable for them and guiding the students in the use of recreational and social activities that they might enjoy. Dean Tolbert openly invites the students "to come by and see us at any time about any question or problem that concerns you."

Counseling and testing are two other services which the Division of Student Personnel Services provides. Dean Tolbert, particularly interested in this field, has written the book Introduction To Counseling, has done extensive research on guidance and has served as counselor to high school and college students as well as adults.

"If at any time you have a question about your curriculum, career plans, or are facing any kind of personal difficulty which you would like to talk over with someone, please come by to see us," said Dean Tolbert. "We will endeavor to give you as much help as possible. We have on file a record of tests that you have taken and we would be glad to discuss them with you."

"Sometimes you have a question or problem and you hear all kinds of 'wild rumors' as to what you should do. The best way to get an answer to these questions is to talk with one of us at Alumnae Hall. If we do not have the information you need, we will certainly do our best to help you find it."

The responsibility for organizing, with the advice of the Dean of the College, the curriculum advisory system is part of Dean Tolbert's job.

Dean Tolbert, with Dean Phyllis M. Meek, works on Freshman Orientation and he often assists the men students in their different organizations. Along with his many other activities, Dean Tolbert is a Professor of Guidance.

He holds a B.S. Degree from the University of Virginia; the M.A. Degree and the Doctorate in Education he received from Ohio University and Teachers College Columbia University respectively.

Dorothy S. Garber, Dean of Women Students, supervises and directs student activities, and furnishes guidance for women students. In charge of the journal of welfare for the entire student body, Dean Garber aids in Freshman orientation, counsels with students regarding personal problems, and promotes the social, moral and spiritual welfare of the students.

As official hostesses of the college, Dean Garber presided over approximately 50 social functions this past year. She helps plan and direct the general social functions of the College and serves as chaperone for official college dances. Dean Garber approves requests of women students to attend parties, trips, and social functions, approves the selection of chaperones for all occasions requiring such services, and arranges for accommodations for parents and other overnight guests.

Dean Garber assumes the responsibility of housing all the students. She makes room assignments and supervises, with the aid of the Assistant Dean of Women and the dormitory hostesses, the living habits of the students.

Among Dean Garber's other duties is her advisory position with the Student Government Council and the Honor Council and with student leaders in the operation and management of other student organizations. She is responsible for the supervision of sorority life on campus and the selection and instruction of the Senior Counselors.

The Dean of Women Students counsels the Social Committee, the Standards Committee, and the Alumnae Committee.

After obtaining her B.S. Degree in Home Economics and a major in science at Madison College, Dean Garber continued her education at the University of Virginia and Harvard University. She also studied at Purdue and the University of Chicago.

The third member of the Student Personnel Service is Phyllis Meek, Assistant Dean of Women. In general, Dean Meek assists Dean Garber in carrying out her duties and responsibilities.

Dean Meek, with the other members of the Student Personnel Service, helps organize and carry out the college program during orientation week.

She assists the Dean of Students in administering group or individual tests for counseling and she assists with the planning and carrying out of research studies relating to student personnel matters.

Also serving as a part-time member of the teaching faculty, Dean Meek teaches "Psychology of Guidance" and "Guidance in the High School."

Kissing, Embraces Immodest In Japan

Kisses and embraces are unknown in Japan as tokens of affection except between mothers and little children. After babyhood, kissing is held to be highly immodest. Parents and children do not kiss; husbands and wives may meet after years of absence, yet they will only kneel down and salute one another, smile and perhaps cry a little for joy. They never rush into each other's arms or utter phrases of affection, but show their love through acts of exquisite courtesy and kindness. —Lafcadio Hearn, Out of the East

The Honor System was created by Madison College students to foster high ideals of integrity and straightforwardness in conduct, thought, and speech. Since it is the work of students, they believe that every person who enrolls at Madison will be proud to belong to an organization which will not tolerate lying, cheating, or stealing. To uphold these high standards is the responsibility of the Honor Council.

The president of this organization is Madeline Peebles, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Peebles of Wakefield, Virginia. Madeline has had three years experience with Honor Council work, one year in which she acted as Secretary of Honor Council.

Assisting Madeline will be Carol Atkinson, Vice President, and Suzanne Buschman, Secretary.

The WAA wishes to have a program that is of interest to the students. Suggestions should be sent to WAA Council through the dormitory representatives.

The Bluestone, in its 54th year of publication, has the honor of being the first student publication at Madison College. The Madison annual is a pictorial history of a year of college. The Breeze is the weekly newspaper published by the student body. The Breeze strives toward becoming a true "voice of the students" by objectively recording the news and encouraging student opinion. Its editors, its staff members, and faculty advisor encourage contributions of student opinions and the door of the Breeze Room

MC Administration Announces Rule And Regulation Changes

Several rules and regulations pertaining to Madison students have been changed and will go into effect this fall.

STUDENT ATTENDANCE

The major change is in rules concerning student attendance. The practice of allowing excuses for student absences is abolished. No absences will be excused.

However absences for certain reasons may be certified.

Absences due to illness may be certified by the College Physician, those caused by death or serious illness in the immediate family and those due to religious holidays may be certified by the Dean of Women for women students, and by the Dean of Students for men. Students who become ill while at home or elsewhere should obtain a statement verifying the illness from the attending physician and present it to the College Physician for his certification. Certified absences should be brought by students to the attention of the instructors of classes missed by presenting the statement of certification.

a. Make up tests will not be allowed nor will faculty members give special help to students who have been absent, unless the absences have been certified for one of the aforementioned reasons by the person designated. Students will be held fully responsible for the material covered while absent from classes.

b. Students who have an average of 2.0 or above will not be subject to disciplinary measures for non-attendance. They must, however, accept the academic consequences of their absences. Students, who have an average below 2.0 and first semester freshmen, will be subject to disciplinary action if they miss more than one meeting of any class. Faculty members should report absences in excess of one by students in these categories to the Dean of Women for women students and to the Dean of Students for men students.

c. All classes will meet in accordance with the official schedule of the College. As has been the practice in the past, any departure from the schedule, in time or place of meeting, must have the prior approval of the Dean of the College.

d. Test dates should be announced as far in advance as possible, preferably at the beginning of each semester. It is recognized that it is not always easy to know when a unit of work will be completed and consequently, the date that a test will be given. Nonetheless, faculty members are urged to make such announcements as early as possible. This is not intended to rule out "pop tests". However, if "pop tests" are given they should be administered in sufficient number or in conjunction with announced tests to preclude the possibility of a few "pop quizzes", alone, causing a student to fail a course.

e. All faculty members are required to check attendance in each of their classes each day they meet. This information is frequently needed by the administration and must be available when needed.

f. All students who expect to be absent from the dormitories should sign out with the Dean of Women.

ACADEMIC PROBATION

All students with a cumulative average of less than 2.0 are on academic probation beginning with the 1962-63 school session. This regulation will become effective for each new student at the beginning of the second semester of her first year here. Scholastic averages will be computed at the end of each semester at which time revised lists of the names of students on academic probation will be distributed to the faculty.

All students who are on academic probation (cumulative average of less than 2.0), regardless of the number of years they have been at Madison, will be permitted only those social privileges allowed first semester freshmen.

BERMUDA RULE

Bermudas, pedal pushers, and slacks may be worn to breakfast and campus until 9 a.m. each day. Sports attire cannot be worn after this time on any day of the week except in the dormitories and in the recreation rooms.

DRESS FOR DATES

Dates are to be dressed neatly at all times, and after 6 p.m. are expected to wear coats.

OFF-LIMITS

The men's dayroom and the area under Wilson stage are off-limits to women students. The dressing rooms under Wilson stage are to be used only during authorized college activities.

BLIND DATES

A student may arrange no more than three blind dates at one time and must sign for all blind dates by 9 p.m. Under extenuating circumstances, the hostess of the dormitory may grant permission for a student to sign for a blind date after 9 p.m.

SUNDAY MORNING DATES

All Sunday morning dates are church dates (either early or 11 a.m. services). Students with dates who go to early church services should obtain approval for these dates on Saturday night. For all dates after 12 noon, freshmen will sign out between 12 and 1 p.m. in Alumnae Hall, and upperclass students will sign out in their dormitories.

DATING BUILDINGS

Girls dating after 6 p.m. may not date in buildings other than those which have dating centers.

SENIOR PRIVILEGES

Students 21 years of age or older, regardless of class, and providing they have a cumulative average of 2.00 and above, shall receive senior privileges provided they have parental approval, and that they sign out just as seniors do. Every student becoming 21 during a semester will report her birthday to the Dean of Women's office before she may receive senior privileges. Students 21 years of age and over may date only men on the Approved List.

DORMITORY REGULATIONS

Seniors must be in their rooms at 11 p.m. each night. Visitation between dorms, with the exception of Freshman dorms, is allowed between 10:30 p.m. and 11 p.m. This privilege applies to members of the Senior Class only.

BABY-SITTING

Baby-sitting is permitted in faculty homes and ministers' homes. Junior and senior students will be allowed to sit until 1 a.m. and must be brought back to the dormitories by 1:15 a.m., following a formal dance at Madison, and on other nights they must return to the dormitories by 11:30 p.m. Freshmen and sophomore students who serve as baby-sitters must return to their dormitories by 12:30 a.m., on nights following a formal dance, and by 11:30 p.m. on other nights.

That's Americanism

If you want your father to take care of you, that's paternalism. If you want your mother to take care of you, that's maternalism. If you want Uncle Sam to take care of you, that's Socialism. If you want your comrades to take care of you, that's Communism. But if you want to take care of yourself, that's Americanism.

Financial Aid, Admissions Are Job of DeLong

Scholarships, jobs, admissions—they are all part of the job of William J. DeLong, Madison's Director of Admissions and Student Aid. DeLong, who has been director since 1953, handles all matters pertaining to admissions, which includes providing literature for prospective students and interviewing students. And it is through his office that all scholarships and student jobs are obtained. Loans such as the National Defense Student Loan are applied for here also.

He is also Chairman of the College Day Scheduling Committee for the State of Virginia and is a member of the Advisory Committee for the Student Cooperative Association of Virginia Congress of Parents and Teachers.

A native of Botetourt county, DeLong received the B.S. degree in science from Roanoke College and the M.A. degree in education from the University of Virginia.

He has held positions as a teacher, a coach, a high school principal and a college administrator. He has had principalships in Alleghany, Nelson and Smyth counties and in the city of Waynesboro.

Q. D. Gasque Has Three-fold Job

The job of Madison's Director of Placement and Field Services is a three-fold one.

Q. D. Gasque is responsible for placing seniors and for the follow-up program as his title indicates. But he also handles the speakers and consultants bureau, a duty not widely known.

All requests for speakers or consultants should go through this office. All professors willing to participate are listed with Gasque and requests are filled from this list.

Last year Gasque visited 243 graduates of Madison at their teaching locations in Virginia. For two years following graduation Madison alumni are visited by the director in order to give them help in adjustment as well as to gain suggestions for improvements in Madison's training for teachers.

Gasque, who came to Madison last August, holds the B.S. degree from The Citadel, Charleston, S. C. He has taken graduate work at The Johns Hopkins University and holds a Master's degree from the University of Virginia.

Before coming to Madison, he was Division Superintendent of Schools of Warren and Rappahannock Counties for 16 years (1945-61.) From 1925-45 he was principal of the Warren County High School at Front Royal.

Think

Let us admit the case of the conservative; if we once start thinking, no one can guarantee where we shall come out, except that many objects, ends, and institutions are doomed. Every thinker puts some portion of an apparently stable world in peril, and no man can wholly predict what will emerge in its place.

Three additional members have been added to the State Board of Education's special committee for Madison College.

The committee membership was increased from two to five persons by the State Board at its meeting in June on recommendation of Madison College President, Dr. G. Tyler Miller.

The committee, which serves in an advisory capacity to the college administration between regular meetings of the Board of Education, has consisted of two members for the past 12 years.

Mrs. Louise Falligant Galleher of Manassas, member of the Board, and Leonard G. Muse, president of the Board, are the two members of the current committee for the College. Mrs. Galleher is and will remain chairman of the committee.

The additional committee appointees, announced recently by Board President Leonard G. Muse of Roanoke, are Mrs. Emily N. Spong, a Madison alumna and former chairman of the Portsmouth School Board; Raymond K. Serfass, divisional manager of Westinghouse Electric Corporation, Verona; and Russell M. Weaver, Harrisonburg attorney.

Mrs. Spong, a Madison College alumna, served on the Portsmouth School Board and was chairman of the Board for a number of years. Several years ago she was the recipient of an award by the Vir-

Mrs. Jacqueline D. Driver will be assistant professor of education and supervisor of the fourth grade student teaching at Anthony-Seeger. She replaces Mrs. Ferraba W. Whitesell. ginia Education Association which is given annually to that School Board Member who had made the greatest contribution to public education in Virginia during the year. The City of Portsmouth has named one of its schools, the Emily N. Spong Elementary School, in recognition of her outstanding services to education in that City.

Serfass, who is active in community and civic affairs in Staunton and Augusta County, served for two years on a committee appointed by Governor Almond to study capital outlays and means of financing for State institutions and agencies. The committee made recommendations in a report to the Governor and the General Assembly for the 1962-68 bienniums.

Weaver, a member of the Harrisonburg law firm of Wharton, Aldhizer and Weaver, was a member of the Virginia House of Delegates from Rockingham County from 1938-1944. He has been active in civic affairs in Harrisonburg and Rockingham County and is a former member of the Harrisonburg City School Board.

The advisory committee, according to Dr. Miller, will probably meet with members of the college administration, divisional directors, heads of departments, and occasionally with faculty several times a year to consider the development of the college physical plant, the instructional program, and other important matters that may be brought to its attention by the President of the College.

The committee will then make recommendations to the full membership of the State Board of Education.

Gibbons Marks 37th "Fiscal" Year As Madison Business Manager

By Kyle Stirling

Howard Kemper Gibbons counts his length of service with the State of Virginia in fiscal years, and appropriately so.

For this year marks the beginning of his 37th fiscal year as business manager of Madison College. At 65, he is the "Dean" of Virginia college business managers.

Gibbons, who was born in Roanoke and attended public schools there, started out to be a doctor. But World War I sidetracked that plan. After serving as a 2nd lieutenant in France during the war, he entered the Law School at Washington and Lee University.

Thirty-seven years ago this month — after he had gotten a law degree from W & L, gone into the haberdashery business for a brief time at Lexington, and worked for a Roanoke bank — Gibbons came to Madison College as business manager and treasurer.

From his office on the first floor of Wilson Hall, Gibbons has kept a conservative — and in the eyes of some of the faculty, "tight-fisted" — hand on the college budget over the years.

The budget, which today involves about two and a half million dollars a year, has grown from about $300,000 annually and the campus has grown from six to 32 buildings since Gibbons came to Madison in 1925.

Although he doesn't accept it, the college administration gives Gibbons a lot of credit for sound business management and planning over the years.

The Madison faculty pay scale is among the highest in the state; the tuition is among the lowest; and the equipment is more than adequate.

In some years when lawmakers have gone a "let's-cut-down-on-spending-in-the-colleges" campaign, Madison College has managed to run a surplus.

Except for modern office machines and an air conditioner, Gibbons' office is furnished with desks, tables, and chairs that possibly have seen as many fiscal years as he has.

"But they are solid," Gibbons points out. "And besides, I have to set an example in money matters. It's difficult for a department head to ask for new office furniture after he's seen mine."

Gibbons likes to recall a comment by a disgruntled faculty member who told him, "You spend the college's money as if it were your own." "I suppose one could consider that a compliment, depending on how he spends his own money," Gibbons said.

Gibbons admits, as he puts it, "being conservative in all things except in my respect for my fellow man." I don't think the labels 'conservative' or 'liberal' mean much today. It's hard to apply the labels to anyone over a period of time in this day and time. When I was growing up, we associated conservatism with the man who saved his money, invested it wisely, and never borrowed any, regardless of his need. It would be hard to apply that yardstick to conservatism today."

"If I hadn't believed in borrowing money to meet a need, my wife and I couldn't have sent our children to college."

Gibbons and his wife, the former Jessie Conrad of Harrisonburg, managed to send their children, three sons and one daughter, to college. Bill, 36, is the oldest. He has a Ph.D. degree in government and economics from Princeton.

Two other sons, Jack, 33, who has a Ph.D. in physics, and Bob, 31, who has a master's degree in physics, are both nuclear physicists at Oak Ridge, Tennessee. The daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Lynn Bucher, teaches school. Her husband is a law student at the University of Richmond.

To the ultimate question, which is asked of all who work long in a profession, Gibbons replies, "If I had it to do over again, I would."

"Of course, I might be expected to say that anyway, for who wants to admit he's made a mistake after 37 years."

But Gibbons says he's enjoyed every minute of every "fiscal year" he has been at Madison College.

As he sees it, the facts and figures he deals with are mere symbols that stand for human beings and their ideas. "These are the things which really make up a college," he says.

Madison College To Offer Teaching Credit For Two Nationwide Television Courses

Madison College will offer undergraduate or professional teaching credit for two nationwide television courses in history and economics beginning September 24, Dr. Percy H. Warren, dean of the college, announced today.

The two courses, for which Madison College will offer three semester hours of credit each, are The American Economy, presented by Learning Resources Institute of C.B.S. television, and American Government, presented by Continental Classroom of N.B.C. television.

According to Dean Warren, those seeking college credit from either of the two courses must be high school graduates who qualify for admission to Madison College. Such persons should apply to Mrs. Pauline Long, registrar of the college, as soon as possible to see if they qualify. Course tuition fees will be charged by the college.

The college-credit arrangement for the two courses is available to both residents and non-residents of the state. However, Dean Warren said participants should live near enough to Madison College in order to attend a weekly meeting with faculty members who will serve as college coordinators of the program, and who will administer final examinations at the close of the course.

Both courses will consist of daily half-hour sessions, Monday through Friday at 6:30 a.m., for 16 weeks a semester.

Dr. John R. Coleman, professor of economics at Carnegie Institute of Technology will be the national teacher for the American Economy course. Dr. John H. Haefler, professor of social studies education at the State University of Iowa will also work with Dr. Coleman in the course. The Madison College coordinator for the course is Dr. L. Owens Rea, professor of economics.

Dr. Peter Odegard, professor of Political Science at the University of California is the national teacher for the American Government course. Mr. Paul Cline, assistant professor of Political Science, will serve as the Madison College coordinator for the course.

The course, American Economy, is scheduled for broadcast over WTOP-TV, Washington, D. C., at 6:30 a.m. beginning September 24, and over WTVA, Richmond, at 7 a.m. The course, American Government, will be offered over Petersburg, Va., and Washington D. C. stations beginning September 24. Participants should also check local television schedules for listing of the two programs.

Last year more than two hundred colleges offered the American Government course for credit. It is co-sponsored by the American Political Science Association, National Council for Social Studies, and the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education. The American Economy course is sponsored by the American Economic Association, Joint Council on Economic Education, and The National Task Force in Economic Education.

President G. Tyler Miller Divides Time Directing Madison College And Daughter

by Carol A. Almond

Ed. note: This article is a reprint from a Breeze last semester.

Administering a college is sometimes less complicated than administering a 14-year-old daughter through adolescence.

Dr. G. Tyler Miller, president of Madison College, must divide his time between directing the college and directing his daughter, Elise Browning Miller.

A widower for the second time, Miller says he has learned to help select clothes for Elise and to cook meals for her when necessary.

"Our favorite food is steak," he said, "it's easy to cook. I can cook anything I can see on top of the stove."

Frozen foods are a Miller specialty too. "I'm good at following directions," he says.

Mrs. Mary Dulaney, housekeeper for the Millers at Hillcrest, does most of the cooking and household chores, and father and daughter have many of their evening meals out during the summer when Mrs. Dulaney takes a two months' vacation.

"Sometimes, though, we just want to have a quiet meal at home," says Dr. Miller. "Then I cook."

Father, Daughter Close

"After dinner I often help Elise with algebra or Latin, subjects I used to teach," he said.

Miller and his daughter select her clothes with the help of "a very capable saleslady" at a Harrisonburg store. They have little difficulty agreeing on what's appropriate.

Dr. Miller says that, although Elise is interested in keeping up with her friends in clothing fads, she's not really extreme in her tastes. "I'm grateful for that," he adds.

"We have a very close relationship. I take her on some business trips with me, and we occasionally go to the beach."

Mother, Father Role Begins

"My first wife, Kathryn G. Weaver, died when my two sons were very young, but fortunately I didn't have much trouble raising them."

G. Tyler Miller, Jr., four, and William W. Miller, two, were partially raised by their mother's parents who lived next door to Dr. Miller in Front Royal. Both boys went to VMI. Now Tyler Jr. is Associate Professor of chemistry at Hampden-Sydney, and his brother, a doctor, is temporarily a captain in the medical corps in Germany.

"Housekeeping for the boys was not too difficult," Dr. Miller reflects, "and I didn't have to cook for them."

Dr. Miller married Elise Reaguer Shirey in 1947 and came to Madison in 1949. His second wife died in 1956. He was left with a very empty blue limestone home, the time-consuming administration of

Madison College, and an eight-year old girl who would soon be saying, "Daddy, let's twist."

The Twist

Dr. Miller relates the incident of Elise, who picks up all the new dance steps, teaching her uncle, Brigadier General C. L. Booth, to do the twist while on a visit to New York over New Year's.

According to Dr. Miller, he'd rather spend his free time playing golf or visiting his three grandsons at Hampden-Sydney. The fourth grandson is in Germany with his parents.

This he does when he's not on one of many business trips, handling affairs at Madison, or helping Elise decide whether or not spike heels are too high at age fourteen.

They Pay But Don't Get

A college education is one of the few things a person is willing to pay for and not get.

It Seems A Shame

It seems a shame that college education should be wasted on high school graduates, who already know everything.

Madison Becomes Affiliate Of Virginia University Center

Madison College for the first time this year will be a part of the University Center in Virginia.

Dr. J. Earl Moreland, president of Randolph-Macon College and president of the board of directors of the center announced Madison's designation as an affiliate in July.

As such Madison will participate in all of the Center programs, including the Faculty Research Program, the Visiting Scholars Program, the Visiting Scientists Program, the Eastern Studies Program, and the Cooperative Film Library.

In making his announcement, Dr. Moreland said, "Madison College brings much strength to the cooperative organization of the University Center in Virginia, and we know that the arrangement is one that will be mutually beneficial."

Dr. William T. Sanger, Chairman of the Council of the Center, said "it is more than appropriate that an outstanding institution such as Madison College should be joined in the University Center movement. Virginia has taken the lead in establishing cooperative organizations such as the University Center in Virginia," he added.

Dr. G. Tyler Miller, president of Madison College, called the Madison College affiliation with the Center "an enhancement to the intellectual climate of the college and the community."

"Our affiliation with the Center will be intellectually stimulating to our faculty, students, and the community at large. It will boost the high level of intellectual climate, which Madison College has always strived to attain," he said.

Madison College is the 22nd institution to become affiliated with the University Center in Virginia.
